She studied at the Leonardo Da Vinci School of Art, and the American University, both in Cairo, Egypt.

Monique exhibits in national competitions and has won numerous awards for her oil paintings. A Word from the President

For our April 26, Tues meeting, we will be holding a "Show & Tell" at the Library. We will set up tables in the McCarthy Room and artists who would like to, may display a few pieces of art work. They may talk and explain about their art work, to people who attend the meeting which will be open to the public.

If the artist likes, they may be working on a piece at the time or not. They might have their cards out to advertise. You can not sell things at the library, but the artist could sell at a later time.

This is a way to show your artwork and to tell people about it. You may sign up, call or e-mail me if you are interested in presenting your work.

The deadline to let me know is before March 29th.

Appleton Mills Update

Applications are still available for Appleton Mills, the first affordable housing project in Massachusetts specifically designed for artists. When it is completed in the April of 2011, this former textile mill in downtown Lowell will offer 130 affordably priced, modern loft-style apartments for artists of all disciplines. Monthly rents will range from approximately $421 for a studio to $954 for a 2-bedroom townhouse.

The response has been overwhelming; we've had 120 certified artists apply for an apartment. As with our initial round of applicants, artists will have a preference over non-artists in the application process. Artists are certified by interviewing with the building's Artist Selection Board.

If you're interested please contact Winn Residential at appletonmills@wincco.com or 978.458.0588. Applications are now being processed on a first-come, first-served basis. For photographs, maps and other information on the project, please visit <http://www.liveappletonmills.com/>.
